MUSTERED OUT.

Stattery A. Unattached Artillery, of Rolona. Is no More.

Gen. Cartis, in compliance with the or der received from headquarters several days ago, has mustored out Battery A, unattached artillary. He began the mustering out proceedings Friday and completed the work last evening. Every member was much regret that Gen. Cartis mustared out Battery A from the service of the state, Speaking of the matter yesterday he paid the following compliment to the men who made up the battery:

"I have known the men of Battery A for years and can testify to their worth as citizens, and the qualities which has made them patriotic and enthusiastic soldiers of the national guard. They are a splendid to to men and I would be glad to have them attach themselves to C or I company, so as to reap the benefit of instruction at the couring encampment."

Battery A, unattached artillery, was organized in 1887. It never saw active service as a bastery, but on a number of occasions it was dismounted for guard duty. It has always responded quickly when called out, and its record as Gen. Cartistantial and the second as Gen. Cartistantials are second as Gen. testifies is a good one. It was officered as follows when mustered out: Captain, T. T. Palmer; first liestenant, Carl Grotz; second lieutenant, J. W. Dutton. The armament of the battery consisted of four three-inch rifled guns, and four caissons.
